

Associate/Full Professor of Management
Sheldon B. Lubar School of Business
University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee

Job Summary/Basic Function: The Sheldon B. Lubar School of Business at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee invites applications for a full-time, faculty position at Associate/Full rank beginning in August, 2010. The incumbent will contribute to the Lubar School's mission via an established program of scholarly research and ability to publish in top tier journals. Teaching responsibilities will include courses in Nonprofit Management and Organizational Behavior. These courses may be part of the M.S. in Nonprofit Management and Leadership, the graduate Certificate in Nonprofit Management (both offered collaboratively with the College of Letters & Science), the MBA or BBA programs. Additional expectations of faculty are to advise students and serve on faculty committees.

The incumbent may also choose to seek appointment as Director of the Helen Bader Institute for Nonprofit Management (HBI). The HBI is a multi-disciplinary, university-wide academic center whose mission is to enhance the management, leadership, and governance of nonprofit organizations through education, research, and capacity building programs. HBI serves as the institutional focal point for a formal partnership between the University and the community of nonprofit sector organizations in the Greater Milwaukee area.

Minimum Qualifications: Qualified candidates must hold a PhD in a management-related field, have a strong publication record and substantial teaching experience.

Preferred Qualifications: Preference will be given to applicants who have publications in premier journals, an active research pipeline, quality presentations at top national and international conferences, and a record of exemplary teaching performance.

Description of School/College/Dept/Program . The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, a major urban university committed to academic excellence, is located in Wisconsin's commercial and industrial hub. The campus is situated in a pleasant residential neighborhood on Milwaukee's northeast side, a few blocks from Lake Michigan. UW-Milwaukee enrolls approximately 30,000 students and is one of two "doctoral cluster" institutions in the 13-campus University of Wisconsin System. The Lubar School is a metropolitan business school of national distinction, accredited by the AACSB, and offers BBA, MBA, Executive MBA, MS and Ph.D. degree programs. A total of 77 full-time faculty members bring an impressive range of expertise to the School, with doctorates and advanced training from some of the country's leading universities. These individuals are recognized for outstanding achievement in their fields, and have broad experience in academic institutions, business organizations, and governmental bodies.
